Fifth Sunday of Easter

Are you old enough to have memories of sitting by a crystal-clear lake? Do you remember swimming in a deep blue ocean, with a pristine beach? I even remember walking up Hollywood Boulevard, taking in the fragrant hibiscus, and walking in and out of sparkling clean shops. That's how old I am.

These days, I long for that “new heaven and new earth” we are promised in today's Revelation reading. I long to walk down a long, clean beach, and to jump into a warm, clear ocean. I long for a predictable climate of four seasons, each with its own small dramas, but nothing like the one-in-a-century storms we see every year now.

And I long to see the new Jerusalem, healed of its trauma, stretching arms of peace and reconciliation. I long to see Gaza, sparkling like a diamond, filled with strong, happy, safe children, with porous borders that welcome friends from both sides as they come and go.

I long to see Ukraine, whole again, rebuilt better than before. I long to see all the war refugees streaming home, and, somehow, even the dead raised back to life, with their loved ones having no memory of their tears. And I long to see the grieving Russian mothers and widows hugging their healthy, happy sons.

Behold, this is God's dwelling, where the earth is healed, and our hearts are healed, and war is thrown into the Lake of Fire, forever. God will wipe every tear from our eyes. That's the promise.

O, Risen Christ, may it be so. May we live to see this promise come true.

And may we offer our lives in service of helping this scripture be fulfilled.

What does a new heaven and a new earth mean to you?

Quinto Domingo de Pascua

¿Has vivido lo suficiente para tener recuerdos de sentarte junto a un lago cristalino? ¿Recuerdas haber nadado en un mar azul profundo, con una playa inmaculada? Yo incluso recuerdo caminar por Hollywood Boulevard, admirando los fragantes hibiscos y entrando y saliendo de tiendas relucientes. Así de vieja estoy.

En estos días, anhelo ese “cielo nuevo y tierra nueva” que se nos promete en la lectura del Apocalipsis de hoy. Anhelo caminar por una playa larga y limpia y meterme en un océano cálido y claro. Anhelo un clima predecible de cuatro estaciones, cada una con sus pequeños dramas, pero nada parecido a las tormentas que ocurrían una vez por siglo y que ahora vemos todos los años.

Y anhelo ver la nueva Jerusalén, sanada de su trauma, extendiendo los brazos de la paz y la reconciliación. Anhelo ver Gaza, brillante como un diamante, llena de niños fuertes, felices y seguros, con fronteras porosas que reciban a los amigos que van y vienen de ambos lados.

Anhelo ver a Ucrania nuevamente completa, reconstruida mejor que antes. Anhelo ver a todos los refugiados de guerra regresar a casa y, de algún modo, incluso a los muertos resucitar, sin que sus seres queridos recuerden sus lágrimas. Y anhelo ver a las afligidas madres y viudas rusas abrazando a sus hijos sanos y felices.

He aquí, esta es la morada de Dios, donde la tierra es sanada, y nuestros corazones son sanados, y la guerra es arrojada al Lago de Fuego, para siempre. Dios secará toda lágrima de nuestros ojos. Esa es la promesa.

Oh, Cristo Resucitado, que así sea. Que podamos vivir para ver esta promesa realizada.

Y que podamos ofrecer nuestras vidas en servicio de lograr que las escrituras sean cumplidas.

¿Qué significan para ti un cielo nuevo y una tierra nueva?
