Solemnity of the Body and Blood

All these years later, I still can't watch the movie Titanic. It's just too terrifying. I was especially shocked to realize that the measure of who lived and died was exactly commensurate with how much money they had.

The wealthy, luxuriating in first class, had access to the limited number of lifeboats. Those who booked passage in steerage would not have the chance to survive that—everyone understood—belonged first to those who had a lot of money.

I think of that while listening to Paul's letter to the Corinthians today. We only hear the section where he recounts the events of the Last Supper, but what comes before and after those words betrays Paul's real message.

Just before he recounts the words of Jesus at the Last Supper (called the Institution Narrative), he scolds the Corinthians for taking a Titanic-type approach to the meal the Christians share in each other's homes, in which the Eucharist is celebrated.

At the table, the rich get the nine places closest to the host. Those struggling to make ends meet are consigned to the atrium, the outer chamber, where they may or may not get anything to eat at all.

So, Paul says, (1Cor. 11: 17-22), some go ahead with their private suppers, and some have nothing to eat. Some get drunk while others go hungry. And then they scandalously receive the Eucharist!

St. Paul is appalled that such divisions should exist at the Eucharist, of all places. He reminds them of Jesus' last words, because they speak of the eternal unity of the Bread, the Cup, and those who receive.

Happy Feast Day, Church. This is the feast that tells us who we are.

Do you remember your First Communion with joy?

PRAY FOR OUR PRIESTS!

Solemnidad del Cuerpo y la Sangre de Cristo

Después de tantos años, sigo sin poder ver la película Titanic. Es simplemente aterradora. Me impactó especialmente darme cuenta de que la cantidad de personas que vivían y morían era exactamente proporcional a su fortuna.

Los ricos, que disfrutaban de la primera clase, tenían acceso al número limitado de botes salvavidas. Quienes reservaban pasaje en tercera clase no tendrían la oportunidad de sobrevivir, porque todos sabían que esa oportunidad pertenecía primero a quienes tenían mucho dinero.

Pienso en eso al escuchar hoy la carta de Pablo a los corintios. Solo escuchamos la parte donde relata los acontecimientos de la Última Cena, pero lo que precede y lo que sigue a esas palabras delata el verdadero mensaje de Pablo.

Justo antes de relatar las palabras de Jesús en la Última Cena (llamada la Narrativa de la Institución), reprende a los corintios por adoptar un enfoque tipo Titanic respecto a la comida que los cristianos comparten en sus hogares, en los que se celebraba la Eucaristía.

En la mesa, los ricos ocupan los nueve lugares más cercanos al anfitrión. Quienes tienen escasos recursos son relegados al atrio, la cámara exterior, donde es posible que no les toque nada para comer.

Así, dice Pablo (1 Cor. 11:17-22), algunos siguen adelante con sus cenas privadas, y otros no tienen nada que comer. Algunos se emborrachan mientras que otros pasan hambre. ¡Y luego reciben la Eucaristía escandalosamente!

San Pablo se horroriza de que existan tales divisiones precisamente en la Eucaristía. Les recuerda las últimas palabras de Jesús, porque hablan de la unidad eterna del Pan, el Cáliz y quienes lo reciben.

Feliz fiesta, Iglesia. Esta es la fiesta que nos dice quiénes somos.

¿Recuerdas tu Primera Comunión con alegría?
